UM PRESENTS LECTURE SERIES ON WOMEN'S HEALTH

MISSOULA--

Local medical specialists are teaming up with The University of Montana to offer a spring-semester lecture series covering premenstrual syndrome, osteoporosis, breast cancer and other health issues important to women throughout their life span.

The lectures, presenting recent advances in clinical medicine, will be held from 12:10 to 1 p.m. Thursdays in Room 204 of the Chemistry/Pharmacy Building. The series is free and open to the public.

For participants who wish to earn continuing education credits, the cost is $9 per session. Each session earns .1 credit.

Here is the schedule of lectures. Please note there will be no lecture on Thursday, March 19, which falls during spring break.

Feb. 5 -- "Contraceptive Methods," by Jean Williams, registered nurse and certified nurse practitioner.

Feb. 12 -- "Migraine Headaches," by Dr. Ethan Russo, neurologist with expertise in herbal medicine.

Feb. 19 -- "Acne," by Dr. Robert Korenberg, dermatologist.

Feb. 26 -- "Gestational Diabetes," by Dr. Nancy Eyler, endocrinologist.

March 5 -- "Weight Control," by Dr. Kathleen Baskett, bariatrics specialist.

March 12 -- "Eating Disorders," by Shan Guisinger, licensed clinical psychologist.

March 26 -- "Menopause and Hormone Replacement," by Dr. Pat Hennessey, family practitioner specializing in treatments for hormonal problems.

April 2 -- "Breast Cancer," by Dr. Kathleen Markette, oncologist.

April 9 -- "Aging and Sun-related Skin Problems," by Dr. Mark Jones, dermatologist.

April 16 -- "Urinary Incontinence," by Dr. Muriel Friedman, urologist.

April 23 -- "Premenstrual Syndrome," by Laura Marx, registered nurse and certified family nurse practitioner.

April 30 -- "Psychological Factors Related to Depression," by Dr. Fred Griffin, psychiatrist and psychotherapist.

May 7 -- "Osteoporosis," by Dr. Wesley W. Wilson, internist.

The lecture series was organized by UM's clinical pharmacy department. For registration and credit information, call Lea Upshaw at UM's Center for Continuing Education, 243-2094.
